Jeff Boateng

EECE 4081

Vision Statement

This isn't really a world problem but it's something that I have been meaning to try to attempt or see it established. I am an athlete who enjoys playing all sorts of sports and have been all my life. I've moved from different states and each time I have a hard time trying to find a league to join because I am new to that area. Most of the time, i have to search online using various search engines and key words to try to arrive at a correct site that has the information that I am looking for. To solve this problem I want to create like a website that will coordinate with all leagues (Soccer to begin) state wide.

The site will basically be a super sport site with all the information about any leagues in any states that are available for players/coaches/parents to search and join. The user will log on and select the sport (soccer), and then they will enter their information: age, sex, location. Then the site will list available leagues from age range, skill range, location range and the information about the leagues, what teams are in the league, if they are recruiting or not recruiting for new players, etc. With all this information online, finding a sport be it recreational or competitive will be easy for anyone, no matter how established they are at the location they are in or they are just simply new there.